An important year ahead for Joined Up Care Derbyshire

It is with some great excitement that I'm writing the introduction of the first Joined Up Care Derbyshire newsletter of 2019. On the back of the recent publication of the NHS Long Term Plan, and the associated planning guidance, it is confirmed that 2019 will be a year of significance for Joined Up Care Derbyshire, and all other STP systems across England.

Having submitted our original STP in October 2016, our various work streams have attempted to progress with as many of the agreed priorities as possible, in the context of a very different financial landscape to that which was outlined originally. The Derbyshire system knew that there was a financial challenge ahead, but the subsequent months revealed that this was an even greater challenge than initially thought. The focus of the system inevitably moved onto dealing with this challenge and there was greater investment of time and resource into the aims of Joined Up Care Derbyshire.

The NHS Long Term Plan enables us to continue the work our programmes have been striving to deliver, and there are many examples of how this work has already transformed and is planning to transform further the services we offer to local people. We'll showcase these developments in forthcoming newsletters and make sure our wider stakeholders understand the impact that Joined Up Care Derbyshire has already had. The priorities highlighted in the plan fit very well with much of what we have already said we needed to do in Derbyshire, so our regulators and politicians have given us a further green light to deliver the plan we originally set out.

That said, times have changed, even since 2016, and whilst the models of care described in the plan remain the same – with preventative, proactive care outside of hospital, that maximises the use of technology still being the core of our aspiration for local services – the detail of the delivery needs looking at again. I am therefore delighted that the NHS Planning Guidance which came out in January asks STPs to refresh their plans this year and we will spend the months from now until the autumn working across the Derbyshire system with our partners, our staff and our communities to reassess the priorities we identified and to make sure they are still fit for purpose for Derbyshire.

Our newsletters will become more frequent, as there will be significant amounts of information to pass around our partners and stakeholders as the refresh takes shape. Not least, there will be significant opportunity for local people to get involved in our review, and support our clinicians and managers in preparing a plan that is co-produced and for the benefit of everyone living and working in Derbyshire.

Joined Up Care Derbyshire Refresh Launch

System clinicians and managers came together to agree the priorities and approach for the Joined Up Care Derbyshire refresh taking place in 2019. The Joined Up Care Derbyshire Board, which meets monthly, has agreed a shortlist of priority areas which will build upon existing work undertaken across the system. Whilst all existing work streams will be of equal importance, the system has agreed that Planned Care, Place and Mental Health and Learning Disability, along with system financial sustainability are the areas which need initial attention as the biggest opportunities for transformation. Each work stream has been asked to write a 'plan on a page' to identify their priorities, building on existing work, and this will be the basis of the refresh during the year. Confirmation of the work streams and their leadership teams will be provided in future newsletter.

NHS Long Term Plan issued

The NHS Long Term Plan was released on 7 January and sets out how NHS England proposes to maximise the £20.5bn additional investment promised by the Government by 2023. The plan builds on the NHS Five Year Forward View and covers a wide range of areas of care and issues facing the NHS, many of which are relevant to our situation in Derbyshire, and reflective of the priorities which we'd already begun to focus upon.

NHS England has produced a very straightforward summary version of the plan, which can be found here:

Derbyshire receives allocation for Long Term Plan (LTP)

Alongside the publication of its Long Term Plan, NHS England has also provided details of Derbyshire's financial allocation. The system is working to understand how this affects and influences local priorities, including where there is any additional funding potentially attached to named priorities or with the potential for investment. Our 2023/24 represents a significant uplift in the money available to the system.
